

Please join us for an informal evening with

Bosnian author and anthropologist

Hariz Halilovich

Free and Open to the Public

Friday, November 28, 2014, 6:00 p.m.

103 Anheuser-Busch Hall

Fontbonne University

6800 Wydown Boulevard

St. Louis, MO 63105

Dr. Halilovich will speak about

Hijacked Memories and the Geography of Genocide in Bosnian Places of Pain

Discussion to follow

A former resident of Srebrenica, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Dr. Halilovich is Associate Professor of Anthropology at Monash University in Melbourne, Australia. He also holds a visiting appointment at UCLA. A columnist for the Bosnian news magazine DANI, he is the author of numerous works of fiction, journalism, and scholarship. His book Places of Pain: Forced Displacement, Popular Memory and Trans-Local Identities in Bosnian War-Torn Communities (New York: Berghahn Books, 2013) has been praised as “one of the most powerful accounts – the most powerful account by a survivor – of the impact of forced displacement in the wake of the Bosnian conflict.”

This event is sponsored by the Bosnia Memory Project at Fontbonne University. For additional information contact Dr. Ben Moore at bmoore@fontbonne.edu or 314-889-4553.

www.fontbonne.edu/bosnia